Happy New Year 2024 - Wishes for the Loved Ones

As the final whispers of 2023 fade and the world prepares to embrace the unknown promise of 2024, our hearts turn towards those who make life's tapestry truly vibrant – our loved ones.

These are the souls who hold our laughter in their echoes, our tears in their gentle hands, and our dreams in their unwavering support.

They are the family who gather close on starlit nights, sharing stories and secrets until the moon dips behind the horizon.

They are the friends whose shoulders we lean on in moments of doubt, their laughter a balm to the soul.

They are the partners who walk beside us, hand in hand, through sunrise and storm, their love a guiding light in the darkest moments.

Let our voices carry the echoes of love, gratitude, and the promise of countless shared moments in the year to come.

May with the wish of God the eager MEK families finally reunite with their loved ones after so many years in this New Year, and an end come to their years of sorrow and misery.

ran."

Chizari emphasized that the Mujahidin did not hesitate to kill and injure innocent people in the alleys and streets, and they are even proud of it.

Pooran Navai was a young girl when she joined the MEK, in the early years after the Iranian revolution.

Pooran was one of those youths who got caught in the MEK, which is now known as a cult. She has been in the MEK for over 4 decades and her family who live in province of Azerbaijan, have been longing to visit or contact her.

Pouran Navai is near 60 years old now. A few years ago, she was diagnosed with cancer. The MEK leaders did not allow her family to visit her even in those hard days.

MEK defector: Rajavi builds enemy out of family

December 11, 2023

Jahanshah Seyed Mohammadi is a former member of the Mujahedin-e Khalq (MEK). He was a sergeant of the Iranian army when he was taken as a war prisoner by Iraqi forces. He was jailed in Abu Qhuraib for 8 months and then, he was taken to POW's camp. As an army officer he was treated violently by Iraqi forces. He and his peers were under torture in the jails of Iraqi defense ministry where MEK agents were actively propagating a pro-democracy and humanitarian portrait of their group.

Jahanshah Seyed Mohammadi is from Kermanshah, Iran. He re-joined his family in his hometown after he escaped Camp Ashraf a decade ago. He is now a member of Nejat Society. His interview with Mehr News Agency was published a few days ago.

Ali Sepah Amiri children write letter to their captive father

December 5, 2023

Dear father, We, your children, pray to God for your health and safety.

Dad! We were worried about you since you were in Iraq left in danger of war and insecurity. And now that you are in a faraway country, locked in a camp without any contact with your family, our worries have doubled and continue.

Daddy! we are thinking of you always and at every moment we ask you to fulfill your fatherly duty for us. Take an action with your own free will as soon as possible and end this situation of indecision, misery and trouble in that Cult.

Love, Your children

No to forced hijab, religion and government” a big lie by Maryam Rajavi

December 4, 2023

The MEK has published a book called “No to compulsory hijab, No to compulsory religion, No to compulsory government” in English, which apparently contains a selection of Maryam Rajavi’s speeches. ....

Maryam Rajavi has claimed to write a book with such titles. No to forced hijab, religion and government, by the mouth of Maryam Rajavi is nothing more than a big lie. She violates these three concepts on daily basis within her organization. She is likely to intend to impose the same version, that is right now being executed in her cult, on the Iranian nation.

The cult-like atmosphere of the MEK and its oppressive ruling made Taleb Jalilian, and many other members of the group want to leave it but, this was a difficult path to take.

Like many others, Taleb asked to leave the MEK but in response he was imprisoned in solitary confinement for a year, eventually interrogated and tortured by his own commanders.
