May 30, 2022

Mahmoud Dehghan, a hostage of the Mujahedin Khalq Organization could manage to escape the group's camp. He left the bars of the cult-like system of Rajavi's group located in Manez, in north of the Albanian capital.

Mahmoud succeeded to escape the cult after more than three decades. During the long years of separation, his family took several actions calling for release of their beloved Mahmoud. They sent open letters to the international and Albanian authorities, published text and video messages to ask Mahmoud to contact them. Today, they can enjoy contacting and visiting Mahmoud in the free world.

Goli's Prison Break, an account of escaping MEK Camp Ashraf

Goli, was a member of the Mujahedin Khalq Organization (MKO/ MEK/ PMOI/ Cult of Rajavi) for 23 years. In the spring of 2011, after he lost 36 of his comrades in the operation against Iraqi forces, he decided to leave the group.

Eventually, Goli got back to his family in his hometown, north of Iran. Today, he writes his account of years of living under the modern slavery of the personality cult of Massoud and Maryam Rajavi, in Persian.

Mohammad Gamoosh was hanged in the MEK Camp Ashraf

Born in 1968, Mohammad Gamoosh was from Zanjan, Iran. He was a soldier in the Iran-Iraq war serving in division 46 Orumieh. He was taken as a war prisoner in a joint operation launched by Iraqi and MEK forces against Iranians in Hajomran region. Mohammad Gamoosh had just finished his army service and had planned to get back home but the tide turned. . .

Eventually, in a cold morning of the winter of 1987, his body was found hanged behind the prison building. A number of members of the Mujahedin Khalq saw Mohammad Gamoosh's body hanged.

The MEK agents did not allow anyone to ask a question about Mohammad's fate. A group of 20 to 30 MEK agents came to take his body, suppressing other prisoners violently. They put his body in a jeep, took him out of Debes prison and buried him immediately.

Ray Torabi's message on the occasion of his 40th birthday

May 28, 2022

Ray (Mohammad Reza) Torabi, former child soldier of the Mojahedin-e Khalq shared a post on his Facebook account on the occasion of his 40th birthday:

"When I was 17, after 8 years of separation from my parents, I finally met my biological mother.

Unfortunately, the condition of our meeting was that I had to leave Canada and go to Iraq to meet her, where she was a member of an Iranian opposition organization (MEK-turned out to be a religious cult) . . ."

Yusof Laskani return home after years of custody in the MEK

Nejat Bloggers

May 22, 2022

Yusof Laskani was released from the MEK in 2016, after 17 years of imprisonment in the cult-like system of the group.

He enjoyed his life in the free world in Albania and Germany for five years and finally, last week, he returned Iran to join his family in his home town.

Yusof Laskani, now 50 years old, from a village in Sistan and Baluchestan province was recruited by the MEK when he was 27.

Nejat Society congratulates him and his family on his return

Hamzeh Rahimi was tortured then disappeared in Rajavi's prison

Nejat Bloggers

May 21, 2022

Hamzeh Rahimi a member of Mojahedin-e Khalq was killed under torture when he was imprisoned in the group's Camp Ashraf. He was an officer of the Iranian army taken as a POW by Iraqi forces before he was recruited by the MEK. He was deceived to join the MEK by the group recruiters when he was in Iraqi POW's camp under too much physical pressure.

Mirbagher Sedaqi, former member of the MEK was in the same unit as Hamzeh was in the MEK's headquarters in Iraq, Camp Ashraf.

He states that Hamzeh had been a pilot of F-5 aircrafts in the Iranian army. He recalls the patriotism of Hamzeh although he was in the side of the enemy of Iran.

Ms. Mohabbati: help me visit my daughter at the MEK camp in Albania

Nejat Bloggers

May 19, 2022

Fatemeh Mohabbati, is the mother of Azadeh Saboor.

Azadeh is a member of the Rajavi cult.

In 2000, Azadeh and her husband were deceived by the MEK and were captured by them.

During all these years, the mother has had no contact with her daughter.

Ms. Mohabbati asks the Albanian Authorities to accelerate a way to visit her daughter, Azadeh Saboor.

Darvishi witnessed Parviz Ahmadi's killing under torture in the MEK

Nejat Bloggers

May 16, 2022

Ardeshir Darvishi, 63, was a sympathizer of the Mujahedin Khalq Organization while he was an army officer of the Iranian army. He left the army in 1991 and joined the group in Camp Ashraf, Iraq, but he soon regretted his decision.

"When I entered Camp Ashraf, I felt like arriving in my dream promised land but after a year and a half I got to know the MEK deeply; I found out that I was wrong," he told the judge of the Iranian court to appeal against the leaders of the MEK.

The MEK Ex-member: We were remote controlled, like robots

May 2, 2022

Ali Qashqaei spent five years (1995-1998) in the organization's camps in Iraq: "I was in a difficult financial situation. I thought the organization could help me to get out of it. I was also attracted by the leaders' message. They claimed they were working to give freedom back to the people and to create democracy and social justice. I left Iran for Istanbul (Turkey) and from there, entered Iraq where movement officials welcomed me. I received military training to use a number of weapons, but I was never involved in operations against the Iranian army. I only took part in reconnaissance missions inside Iran".

The MEK former member: Rajavi is an Iranian Bin-Laden

Mohammad Nazari

May 18, 2022

Long ago, a mechanical engineer, born to poor peasants, was attracted to the movement against the Shah's dictatorship by the speeches of Mehdi Bazargan, Hanifnezhad and Masoud Rajavi.

He joined the MEK in his home region in northern Iran. Soon he joined the movement's militia. He explains that, "I knew the organization carried out violent activities, but I was proud of that since the targets were the monarchy and imperialist agents".

He is a Bin Laden. The afghan leader gave his life for his people. The Iranian, for his part, has not the slightest qualms about sending his men to their deaths. But he, himself, avoids touching a rifle."

About Nejat Society

Nejat Society consists of some former members of the Iranian Mojahedin-e Khalq Organization (MEK, MKO, Rajavi cult) and the families of the present members seeking to contact their loved ones.

Some of the aims of Nejat Society are:

To inform as widely as possible about the real cultic nature of the MEK and their deception techniques to recruit young and unaware individuals.

To act as a pressure group to persuade the cult leaders to respect the basic rights of the members according to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other international conventions.

To reconcile and reunite people who leave the MEK with their families, by mutual consent, and to involve established Iranians in helping these vulnerable people

May Day, a standard to bring the MEK leaders to trial

By Mazda Parsi

Under the impression that she was joining a movement to free the Iranian people, Zahra Mirbagheri found herself in the deserts of Iraq, running carrying heavy pack bags full of rocks. "Viva Rajavi", she heard herself chanting in the headquarters of the Mujahedin Khalq Organization.

Motivated by the inspirations made by her older brother and sister, Zahra left her parents behind in Tehran and joined the MEK in Camp Ashraf, Iraq, where she actually became the victim of the destructive Cult of Rajavi.

The MEK's newly es-established city in north of Tirana (Camp Ashraf 3), with its many buildings was built in less than a year by the hands of two thousand male and female members who have nothing to do except obeying the orders of their commanders. They are not paid for such long hours of hard work and they are not retired even if they are old, sick or paralyzed. They have no days off even if it is the International Worker's Day.
